

Please do not allow the Consumer Bankers Association's (CBA) appeal to add themselves to the "established business relationship" exemption of the "No-call" list from Indiana. I already receive an average of 2 or 3 letters a day asking me to sign up for some credit card or loan from CBA members. I certainly don't want that compounded with telephone calls as well. The banks get their message across without telephone solicitation. The "No-call" list works as is. Please keep it that way.

Sincerely,

Steven J. Ankenbruck
